

PROTECTION OF PERSONAL DATA

Project “HUMANE. Humanitarian Aid, Politics and Religion: A Transnational History of the Catholic Near East Welfare Association from the 1920s to the present day”

Personal data

Personal data may be collected in the context of the HUMANE project and processed for research purposes.

They are kept for a period of three years after the publication of the last research results. They are then pseudonymised and archived for research purposes only.

The collecting and processing of personal data are the researcher's responsibility, with the Data Protection Manager of the École française de Rome (EFR), and under the control of the EFR (C.F.96039740582), in the person of its legal representative, with registered office in Rome (00186), Piazza Navona 62, Italy.

Rights of individuals

In compliance with the applicable legal and regulatory provisions, in particular the European Regulation No. 2016/679/EU of 27 April 2016 (applicable since 25 May 2018), the persons whose personal data are collected have the following rights:

- right to access to one's data;
- right to ask to receive his/her data in a structured and machine-readable format (this right shall not apply to processing necessary for the performance of a task in the public interest);
- right to be informed of a data breach when there is a significant risk for the data subjects;
- right to object on legitimate grounds to the use of his/her personal data (a derogation makes it possible to reject such a request where the processing is based on the performance of a task of public interest);
- right of rectification;
- right to erasure;
- right to a restricted use of one's data

Contacts

You are entitled to exercise these rights and ask questions about this project at any time by contacting:

- the researcher in charge of collecting and processing the data, Marie Levant: marie.levant@efrome.it, École française de Rome (Piazza Navona 62 00186 Roma, ITALY).
